After two impossibly short, yet seminal CDeps on Lovitt and Vermiform Records, Rah Bras are ready to engage listeners once again with their concentration of melodic assault and spectacular beats. Consisting of a gigantic keyboard, bass, and drums, Rah Bras' music layers provocative vocals over tight little riffs and throbbing tempos. Ruy Blas!, the new project on Lovitt Records, is an audacious concoction of pop presence and electronic abrasives that gallops the gamut from gamelan to garish. This ability to absorb an obsessive amount of rather disparate influences in order to create something so wholly new and uncontrived is a rare feat. That it comes together so effortlessly for this band awards them a certain genre-defining moment with this release.

In addition to the aforementioned CDeps and new full length Ruy Blas!, they have also contributed to multiple compilations, including the "Whistle of the Missile" video on Bifocal Media, the remix project released by Skyscraper magazine, the mix-tape double CD on Troubleman, two compilations on Vermiform Records (Fruited Other Surfaces and False Object Sensor) and an upcoming compilation on Toyo Records.

Rah Bras are: Isabellarah Rubella on Synth (formerly of Damn Near Red)
Boo Rah on Bass (formerly of Maximillian Colby and Sleepytime Trio)
Jean Rah on Drums (formerly of Hose.Got.Cable)

They have all played in one incarnation or another of Men's Recovery Project and currently Boo plays with fellow Lovitt Recording artists Bats & Mice.

Over the past years Rah Bras have played the U.S., Japan, and Europe with bands such as Ruins, Melt Banana, Le Tigre, Lightening Bolt, The Faint and Fugazi.
